Group Sarp Industries, Veolia

BIOGRAPHY

Volunteer in the Navy at age 15, this self-educated, today aged 55, has followed a very diverse professional itinerary before joining the early 80s, the burgeoning adventure of hazardous waste treatment.

With different management roles for 30 years, in factories belonging to the world number one group of environmental protection, Veolia, he climbed all the hierarchical levels and now holds the position of General Manager of the group maritime branch, in charge of MARPOL waste management for the French Mediterranean frontage.

Based in the port of Marseille, his company offers to the customers, namely ship owners and shipping agents all processing means and especially waste recycling of ships, provided by the group.

With the mission of making of waste a resource, it develops a policy in ships sight of selective sorting at the source and optimizes environmental and economic performance of its clients.
