

Waste reception: the choice of the port of Marseille-Fos

Capt Radu Spataru

Deputy Harbour Master
Marseilles Fos Port Authority

BIOGRAPHY

After graduating from the National School of Merchant Marine, Radu Spataru started sailing on merchant ships and obtained his license of Master Mariner in 1981. His experience covers all types of vessels, from general cargo to tankers, passing by cruise ships and on all lines, from tramping till regular lines in North and Mediterranean Seas.

After 17 years of sailing, he decided to put bag on the ground and converted into the Port Officers corps, where he climbed the ladder to lead in first rank, after having been Harbour Master of the ports of Bastia and Nice. At the same time, he obtained an engineer diploma and a post graduate diploma in "Maritime Law" and teaches as a part time teacher at Maritime High School of Bastia.

Radu Spataru is a member of several working groups, national and international, including the European project MARNIS and SECURMED. After holding the position of Deputy Harbour Master at the port of Marseille, in charge of safety, studies and development projects, he's actually in charge of Training, Cooperation and Projects, while ensuring punctual missions abroad.
